STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The economic development programmes for Scheduled Castes have been generally taken up under what is known as welfare of backward classes sector. These outlays are extremely inadequate and generally prove to be small distributive schemes which had no perceptible impact on their economic conditions. The Government of India has desired that the family oriented programme under each sector should be quantified and certain percentage out of this outlay should be reserved for Scheduled Castes. Similarly, hamlet-based schemes are also to be quantified under each sector out of which a certain proportion has to be earmarked for Scheduled Castes hamlets on the basis of the degree of deficiency in such hamlets in relation to the concerned service. One of the important problems which comes in accrual of benefits of sectoral programmes to the Scheduled Castes is that the eligibility conditions are not suitably adapted to their specific requirements. Although it is expected that these conditions will be adapted by the concerned authorities, it is a time consuming process and some immediate solution has to be found so that the additional input which may be required by the members of the Scheduled Castes because of their extreme economic conditions can be made good. In some cases, it is a question of some body standing a guarantee for a person who has no property. In yet other cases, the basic difficulty is that the institutions with which the members of the Scheduled Castes are so sophisticated and they find themselves bewildered. Even in the case of normal governmental programmes sometimes procedures are so complex that they are beyond their comprehension. These have been some of the reasons why the Scheduled Castes remain where they are, notwithstanding considerable goodwill which has been in evidence in many quarters. The economic upliftment of the lowest strata in the Society hamstrung by social disability cannot be achieved but by commitment of the total Government administration concerned with all aspects of development to this task. Never theless, all these efforts have to be brought to a point and method has to be found so that all conceivable obstacles enumerated above can be overcome. It is in the context of this need that the Scheduled Caste Development Corporations have been started in many States. The schemes, these corporations are implementing differ from State to State. The Government of Himachal Pradesh also proposes to set up such a Corporation for the speedy economic development of the Scheduled Castes. The Corporation will provide necessary back-up in the form of guarantee, promotion efforts and also missing inputs, wherever necessary. Its role would, be that of a catalytic and trouble shooter. This Corporation does not, in any way, absolve the concerned sectoral authorities of their direct responsibility. This Corporation will be used, wherever necessary, for taking the programmes further and multiplying the impact of whatever investment has been made for these communities.

Minister-in-charge.
